City of Stayton Change of Use Permit Information Sheet

The requirement for a Change of Use Permit was included in the 2007 Update to the Stayton Land Use and Development Code. The purpose of the permit is to assure that new uses occupying existing buildings are in conformance with the land use and development requirements of the Code. Review of this application should normally take no more than 3 business days.

In its review of the application the Planning Department staff will be looking to make sure that the proposed use is a permitted use in the location in which it is proposed and that there is adequate parking for the proposed use. Depending on the type of use, the staff may require additional information, such as the number of seats in a restaurant.

In some cases a permit from Marion County may be required in order to authorize a change in occupancy, even if no structural alterations are proposed. It is the applicant's responsibility to contact Marion County Building Inspection at (503) 588-5147 to determine whether a permit is necessary. Failure to obtain this permit may result in delays in the issuance of electrical or mechanical permits.

For additional information, contact the City of Stayton Planning Department.
